SEA ANGLING

Brief notes on fishing grounds:

LT.A. TOPOGRAPHICAL AND GENERAL

SPORTS AND Belmullet is an ideal centre for the sea angler owing to its unique situation between the two Bays, Blacksod and Broadhaven, the former with a southern aspect and the latter, northern. The fisherman who finds the southern bay too rough may pass through the few hundred yards of canal into Broadhaven and vice versa, thus finding shelter in almost any weather.

Situation and brief description of course :

This is an ideal natural course but owing to small membership, it does not receive due care. The course has been described as a comparatively simple one with natural bunkers and the minimum of usual equipment. Being slightly over three miles from the town and quite near Binghamstown, the present course is considered as very inconveniently distant and it is proposed but not definitely decided, to return to the old course which has about equal merits but is only about low miles from towm, at Carn. The present course but is only about 12 miles from towm, at Carn. The present course is in a very pretty setting on the verge of the Atlantic and commName of Professional None / ands a wonderful view of the hills of Achill and the islands, including famed Inis Gloire which is quite close No
